

Stephen Dubiensi

Stephen Dubiensi is a sport management and psychology professional with a background in sport management, sport psychology, brand marketing and elite athletic performance. He received his Masters' in Sport Psychology at the University of Manitoba and a Bachelor of Science in Sports Management from Georgia Southern University. His professional career has included working for the Vancouver Olympic Committee, Red Bull and the University of Winnipeg. A former NCAA Division 1 tennis athlete, Stephen developed an understanding of sport performance and the psychological toll that sports can take on an athlete. Motivated to provide positive tools for athletes suffering from psychological setbacks, Stephen delivers his performance tools of sport psychology in a relatable method to athletes.

